

MARCH 3, 2010

Last night, Tuesday March, 2, The Village Voice celebrated the 25 year commitment of columnist Michael Musto. The event was co-hosted by Joan Rivers and Michael Urie, and featured performances by Murray Hill, Dirty Martini, Bridgett Everett, Tommy Femia, Vodka Stinger, and Talulah DeBayous. DJ Dan Fortune supplied music for the evening.

Musto is the author of the weekly "La Dolce Musto" celebrity and gossip column for The Village Voice, for which he has been writing since 1984. He is also the author of Downtown and Manhattan on the Rocks. A selection of his columns has been published as La Dolce Musto. He is also a regular guest on television shows such as "Countdown with Keith Olberman" and programs on the E! network. He is published regularly in several gay publications, including Out Magazine and Show People. Congratulations Michael, and here's to another 25 years!
